GENERAL PACKING GUIDELINES

Appropriate Attire

While OSRUI does not have a dress code, we ask each camper to dress in a way that reflects respect for camp, our values, ourselves, other members of our community, and that is safe and appropriate for camp activity. To separate Shabbat from the rest of the week, our camp custom is to not wear jeans, sweatpants, or t-shirts with words or graphics.

Laundry

Laundry service is available and included for campers staying longer than 2 weeks. The packing list reflects an estimated two weeks' worth of clothing.

Labeling Clothing and Belongings

Please clearly mark all clothing and personal belongings with your camper's full name so we can ensure it is returned if misplaced. Many parents make an inventory of all the camper's belongings and leave it inside their luggage so they can check off items while packing up at the end of their session.

Lost and Found

If items are left at camp, OSRUI will make every attempt to return them. Items marked with full camper names are easiest to identify and return. Olin-Sang-Ruby Union Institute cannot accept responsibility for loss or damage to the clothing, equipment, or personal effects of our campers.

WHAT NOT TO PACK

In keeping with our code of conduct, we do request that your camper refrains from bringing the following items to camp:

- Cell phones of any kind
- iPod/MP3 player with screen
- Laptops, iPads, tablets, portable DVD players, Apple Watch & other smart watches, hand-held video game devices
- Any device with the ability to connect to the internet (even if you disable WiFi)
- Clothing with inappropriate language or images that suggest or promote drugs or alcohol
- Expensive clothing requiring special washing
- Chewing gum, candy, food of any kind
- Bottled water
- Walkie-talkies
- Shoes or sandals with heels higher than two inches
- Valuable jewelry
- Super soakers/water guns
- Expensive digital cameras
- Hoverboards, skateboards, scooters, "Heelies"
- E-cigarettes, vapes, Juuls, portable essential oil diffusers

Please do not bring valuables to camp. Valuables needed for travel can be put in the camp safe for safe keeping and returned at the end of the session. OSRUI is not responsible for any campers' individual belongings.
